

MASTER'S DEGREE NAME

CRITICAL AREA AND EMERGENCY NURSING

OBJECTIVES (ART. 1 PARAGRAPH 2)

The Master aims to train specialists in "Critical and Emergency Nursing". The term "Critical Area" refers to all the situations characterized by the criticality and instability of the Person and the complexity of the nursing intervention wherever they occur and therefore not peculiar only to intensive therapies or territorial emergency. The First Cycle Master's Degree in Critical and Emergency Nursing is an advanced post-basic training course in which the nurse expands or acquires advanced and specific professional skills necessary in the operational areas of the Critical Area in which it is necessary to manage (plan, implement, monitor and evaluate) comprehensive, continuous, timely and high quality care strategies in response to health needs and complex, real or potential physical, psychosocial problems that may occur in the person. The knowledge and technical-practical skills that will be acquired at the end of the Master's Degree provide for the in-depth analysis of nursing based on efficacy tests (EBN) and the advanced skills in a critical area in order to make the specialist nurse able to assess the care needs in a critical area, manage the care process in the high intensity of care and care complexity, as well as the related care paths; carry out training, applied research and consultancy activities to guarantee the quality of care and the evaluation of outcomes in the specific field. The training process will use various teaching methodologies starting from the classroom, being developed in the laboratory and expanding into an advanced simulation center and then ending in a period of on-site internship (Intensive Therapy, First Aid, Territorial Emergency Operations Centre and critical area services) in order to guarantee complete training for a professional with qualifications that meet the needs of companies in the National Health System and beyond. At the end of the master's degree, the student will be able to: either carry out nursing care focused on the 4 of 16 health problems/needs and on the need of the person assisted in a critical area; or plan, manage and evaluate the care process guaranteeing health outcomes to the person and the family; or apply care processes in critical area contexts or manage material resources to achieve effective, efficient and coherent care; or participate in the training activities of personnel in the sector; or offer consultancy activities to other operators of the care settings; or -participate in research activities.
